Information on student assignments, lectures, etc. is shared between students and teachers. •Students are encouraged to refer to rich online resources. •Student faculty Exchange Programmes, Educational trips within and out of town. • Organization of SIP (student induction programme) for orientation of I Year students in the laboratory

How does IQAC Contribute/Monitor/Evaluate the Teaching & Learning processes:

The college views the teaching-learning process as the single most important function it performs. The defining attribute of excellence at YVNR Govt. Degree College is the quality of its teaching-learning programmes that are not restricted only to the classroom but include the staggering range of enrichment activities. Although College functions within the constraints of the overarching curricular framework prescribed by the parent university, it exercises to create uniquely enabling experiences for the student to help each one accomplish the generic goals of education, and specific course objectives and learning outcomes.

Teaching-learning is student-centric, highly interactive and innovative, blending a variety of methods including ICT as deemed suitable. Continuous assessment is used to identify students' learning difficulties and special needs so that no student is left behind and every student receives adequate support through remedial coaching. Enhancement of language proficiency and communication skills through specially designed courses is high priority.

Creative teaching-learning within the classroom and enrichment activities beyond the classroom have ensured successful achievement of learning outcomes. Capacity building programmes, the faculty have been adequately motivated, oriented and professionally enabled to handle changes in the syllabi. Under CBCS, the college has leveraged the system to provide students maximum available flexibility in choice of courses. Proper monitoring and timely procurement has ensured students have the necessary course material.

The college has taken a quantum leap in digital infrastructure to remain on the leading edge as knowledge-based community, leveraging e-resources. College views beyond the classroom activities as essential for nurturing talent and developing a sense of social responsibility, soft skills and leadership qualities. Faculty members undertake continuous assessment as a tool for enhancing and enriching teaching learning.

Then instead of cursory evaluation, they integrate assignments, seminars and other modes to gauge students' course specific achievements. Following an open system, individual work and collaborative group work are blended. If at any stage an error is identified, a formal mechanism of grievance redresser exists.

Details of gender sensitization programmes

YVNR Govt. Degree College has a legacy of being an empowering space for women. Admissions in recent years have brought to the institution students from different social groups. Student diversity ranges along several dimensions. The college has developed mechanisms to meet the needs of all students.

The process of sensitizing students to key concerns on gender, inclusion and environment is initiated at the beginning of each academic session.

On the other hand, various committees keep the discussions alive outside the classroom and make the concerns on gender, inclusion and environment an important part of their belief system and identity. The specific task of wide-ranging extramural engagement is taken up by the dedicated cells of the college which include the NSS, WEC, Anti Ragging Cell, Cell for Sexual harassment and IQAC.

Women's Empowerment Cell: WEC spearheads gender sensitization and empowerment programmes. Through regular informal discussions and debates, an enabling environment has been created in the college where students are able to break their silence on child sexual abuse, family violence and violence by close and intimate partners. WEC conducts guest lectures, competitions on Women and Law to educate students on their fundamental legal rights.
